Thaw's right to obtain a trial before a jury on the question of his sanity was upheld by the New York Court of Appeals.

Congressman Thomas will introduce a bill at the next Congress for the purchase of Mammoth Cave by the Government as a national park for $1,000,000.

A house-to-house search is being made for the murderer of Elizabeth Nolte in Cincinnati. She was an 11-year-old child who disappeared and later her mutilated body was found in the back yard of her home.

The prisoners taken by the German and Austro-Hungarian armies up to June 14 totaled 1,610,000, according to the Bavarian Staats Zeitung. The newspapers say this total is divided as follows: Russian, 1,240,000; French, 255,000; English, 24,000; Belgian, 41,000; Serbian, 50,000.

The French chamber of deputies has adopted a measure proposed by Lucien Dumont to burn unidentified bodies at the front and to bury those which had been identified. Deputy Dumont said the question was an urgent one on account of the heat, the military authorities not being in a position to bury all bodies promptly during heavy fighting. He discussed the religious and sentimental reasons against incineration and cited precedents established in other wars.

The Austro-German troops in pursuit of the retreating Russians have crossed the Galician border north of Sieniawa and have reached the heights north of Krezow, Russia, and occupied the Russian town of Tarnograd, according to an official communication issued by the Vienna war office. The battle of Lemberg is now ranging along the fortified Grodek line, where it is predicted the Russians will give a final stubborn battle to save the capital.

City Commissioner Lyle Andrews and City Comptroller Miles Burns, of Nashville, were arrested Friday on a state's warrant sworn out by Mayor Howse charging them with destroying valuable records of the city. A warrant for the arrest of Johnson B. West, Jr., assistant city treasurer, was also issued, but West, who left town suddenly about ten days ago on the eve of the audit of the city's books, could not be located. Andrews and Burns made bond in the sum of $10,000.

The British press, pending such time as the Russians stiffen their resistance, is finding solace in the reports of the colossal human sacrifices which the Austro-German drive through Galicia entailed. It is claimed that the Russians, even if forced to retreat, by clever management have drawn the Austro-German forces perilously far from their rail communications, meantime so seriously sapping their vitality with estimated losses of 10,000 men a day as to contribute materially to the outcome of the western campaign.

President Wilson called at the home of former Secretary of State Bryan Friday to bid good-bye to Mr. and Mrs. Bryan before they departed for a southern trip. This visit was described as entirely social and there were no references to the international situation. Secretary McAdoo called later. During the afternoon Mr. Bryan made public a statement denying reports that he had been ignored by President Wilson while secretary of state. He said there never were any material differences on questions of policy between himself and the President until the foreign submarine controversy arose.

HOW TO RAISE ORPHAN COLTS

Foal May Be Raised on Cow's Milk in Case of Accident—Attendant Must Be Patient.

(By W. S. ALEXANDER, Wisconsin Experiment Station.)

In case the mare dies or has no milk the foal may be raised on cow's milk. If the attendant conducts the work patiently and intelligently. Choose the milk of a cow that has recently calved, preferably one which gives milk low in butterfat, as mares' milk, while rich in sugar, is poor in fat. Sweeten the milk with molasses or sugar and dilute with warm water. Give a little of this prepared milk at short intervals from a scalded nursing bottle and large rubber nipple. Be careful to keep the bottle and nipple scrupulously clean. Add an ounce of lime water to each pint of the prepared milk and allow half a cupful once an hour at first.

As the foal grows, gradually increase the amount of milk fed and lengthen the intervals between meals. In a few days food may be given six times a day and, later, four times daily. The foal will soon learn to drink from a pail, if allowed to suck the attendant's fingers at first.

Until the bowels move freely give rectal injections night and morning. If the foal scours at any time give two to four tablespoonfuls of a mixture of sweet oil and pure castor oil shaken up in milk, and stop feeding milk for two or three meals, allowing sweetened warm water and lime water instead. Let the foal lick oatmeal as soon as it will eat and gradually increase the amount and add wheat bran. In five or six weeks some sweet skim milk may be given and the amount gradually increased daily until, in three months or so, it may be given freely three times a day in

HOGS SUBJECT TO DISEASES

Mange Is Difficult to Eradicate Because of the Burrowing Habit of the Parasites.

(By M. H. REYNOLDS, Minnesota Experiment Station.)

Hogs are subject to a variety of skin diseases. Two of these, although quite different, are both known as mange.

Pitch mange is not a true mange, but rather an eczema, and affects hogs that are not in vigorous health and when kept in filthy pens and bad surroundings. Light-skinned hogs appear somewhat more susceptible to this than others. The skin is at first red and perhaps swollen. Small red spots appear and subsequently change to blisters, which dry and form crusts. The main treatment needed is simple cleanliness and the sort of feed that will make the hog healthy and vigorous. It usually means a complete change of surroundings and plenty of good food.

Hogs are subject also to true mange. This is caused by a minute animal parasite which burrows into the skin like the human itch mite and causes severe inflammation and itching. This form of mange is especially difficult to treat because of the burrowing habit of the parasite. Mange begins somewhere on the head or neck and extends slowly backward. The hams are likely to be affected sooner or later. The bristles fall out, and the skin becomes very thick and wrinkled. Sometimes it is thickened to an astonishing extent. Hog mange is peculiar on account of the powderlike surface of the crust.

Horse Care.

Don't whip the horse if he is afraid. Talk gently to him. Don't forget his salt. Don't put a rough, dirty bit in his mouth, nor a frosty one. Don't hitch him in the cold unprotected by blankets, and hitch him so the wind will not be in his face. Notice how horses in a lot always turn tail to a cold wind. Give him enough to eat of good, wholesome food, and all the good water he wants.

POULTRY

PEN THE HENS TO GET EGGS

Fowls Should Be Confined From Time They Reach Maturity Until Marketed as Poultry.

(By GEORGE H. FELLARD.)

As a cold-blooded business proposition, probably no plan is better than that of keeping the hens shut in all the time. They should be confined from the time they reach maturity until marketed as poultry, and fed as stout a ration as they will stand without going wrong.

Aside from sentiment and pleasure in their appearance, this is the money-making way for villagers and suburbanites, who have limited yard room and need to keep their premises free from litter and soiling that are otherwise nearly inseparable from poultry keeping.

The fowls do not look so well as when on range—their plumage gets dull and they are less lively, but they will shell out the eggs and keep on shelling them out with less labor and less expense than under any other system, unless it is the colony system with free range.

Even then it is doubtful if the same number can be more easily cared for, of the ultimate profit will be greater. In keeping the hens on this plan, they should be separated into flocks of 25 to 35 and allowed from four to six square feet per bird.

Dry feeding entails the least work and, therefore, brings the best profit, as the egg yield is generally better than where fed on the one-meal-at-a-time and the quick lunch systems.

If the feed is properly proportioned and the supply is always ample, there will be no trouble in getting eggs, and lots of them, if the hens are in good health. We doubt if there is so much difference in the average egg production of hens as is sometimes fancied.

With good feeding—which means the right kind as well as quantities—most hens will make good. Some will do better than others, but so far it seems impracticable to select only the best in this case.

The time taken in selection, and the fact that the hen should go at it a year old, makes the labor of selection, together with the uncertainty of reproduction, more expensive than keeping the usual proportion of poor layers.

Trap-nesting is the only positive way of deciding the question, and that is a way which is impractical where large numbers are kept.

Kept housed all the time, the hens are subject to the most arbitrary feeding rules and experience is showing that they will produce as many, or more, eggs as when on range.

Occasionally a hen will get to feather pulling or egg eating. In such cases a run of a few days outside will usually cure the habit; if not, dark nests or the ax will.

GIVING OIL FOR INDIGESTION

Green or Immature Corn Is Always Sure to Cause Trouble—Mild Purgative Is Recommended.

Nearly two-thirds of the deaths of turkeys are caused by indigestion. Green or immature corn is always sure to cause indigestion and bowel trouble, and birds so afflicted droop around, are "off their feed," and if relief is not given them, die in a few days.

Having lost some turkeys from indigestion, we resolved to experiment a little. Instead of giving a violent purgative as recommended by some poultrymen, we gave a mild one, namely: Raw linseed oil in tablespoonful doses. We have never known this remedy to fail, says a writer in an exchange. As soon as a turkey looks dejected and "droopy" we give it a dose and next day it is chipper and spry as ever. Poults should be given teaspoonful doses of the oil.

Growth of Duckling. The most notable growth of the duckling is between the third and fourth week of its age, when it often doubles its weight.
